League of Legends

LoL is introducing a new champion to the Rift, Senna. Originally one of the many souls trapped in Thresh's lantern and a fan favorite since her introduction in Lucian's story, Senna is the newest support to join LoL's roster of more than 140 champions and will uniquely embody a marksman-like playstyle. She will hit the Public Beta Environment on October 29th and live servers on November 10th.

Starting October 22nd on the Public Beta Environment, players will bear witness to the biggest changes to Summoner's Rift in years with Rise of the Elements, a series of preseason gameplay changes built on one of the game's most dynamic features, the Elemental Drakes. Live server players will explore these preseason features on November 20th.

For the first time in four years, LoL will bring back Ultra Rapid Fire (URF) with full champion select, a popular, chaotically fun, limited-time game mode. Additionally, all Riot products will begin gradually supporting Arabic language. And Riot will release a series of nine albums featuring music from each season of LoL on preferred streaming music platforms on October 15th.

Finally, as a thank you to all players who've set foot on the Rift, for 10 days starting October 17th, all players with accounts made prior to October 15th at 6pm PDT will receive an in-game gift every day they log in and play a game, in the lead up to the actual LoL anniversary date of October 27th.
